Curry Stone Design Prize goes to Rural Urban Framework for revitalizing China's shrinking villages

October 5, 2015

Joshua Bolchover and John Lin of Hong Kong-based nonprofit firm Rural Urban Framework (RUF) were officially announced as the 2015 Curry Stone Design Prize winners at the Chicago Architecture Biennial opening this past Saturday. RUF received the prestigious prize not only for its design work, but also its mission, research, and positive social impact on the local population.
